To the US Government,

Don't tell people to "be all they can be", and then slap them around if they become the best at what they do.

Free enterprise is what made the country great, not government intervention and manipulation of business.

The market will always adjust itself. Maybe not overnight as most Americans seem to require, but it always does in a competitive environment. Another great idea will always come along to challenge the current supremacy of a corporation if you just let the people and private sector work their magic.
